Terms & Conditions

Proposed B2B terms for professional lighting, advice and international supply.

Commercial draft for internal review

This is a proposed set of business terms, not final terms already adopted for sales. The business identity and commercial choices require confirmation and legal review before use. No order is created by viewing this page or submitting an enquiry.

Updated 21 September 2026 · Review edition 1

1. Seller and business customers

These proposed terms concern the supply of professional LED lighting and related services under the name LED Light Solutions / Ledlightsolutions.eu, a trading name associated with Global Squash, Netherlands (the “Seller”). The exact registered contracting party and business particulars must be completed in the Legal notice and on each quotation before these terms are adopted.

The intended customer is a business, public authority or other organisation acting for professional purposes (the “Customer”). The person placing an order must have authority to bind that organisation. We may request proportionate information to verify its identity, destination and intended use. Direct consumer checkout is not available. Describing someone as a business customer does not remove rights that mandatory law gives them.

2. When an agreement is made

The website, project brief, downloads and automated messages are invitations to discuss a project. They are not an offer capable of acceptance, a stock reservation or an order confirmation. Submitting an enquiry does not create a purchase obligation.

A contract is formed when the Customer accepts a written quotation within its stated validity period and the Seller issues written order acceptance. The accepted documents must identify the parties, goods or services, quantities, specifications, price, currency, taxes, payment arrangement, destination and delivery scope. Email can provide written confirmation. Obvious errors must be corrected and agreed before acceptance; confirmed orders are not subject to unilateral price or specification changes.

The applicable version of the final terms must be supplied in a form the Customer can save before the contract is concluded. Publication on this website alone is not acceptance of these draft terms. A later website update does not retrospectively change an existing contract.

3. Contract documents and changes

Mandatory law takes priority. Subject to it, individually negotiated written provisions prevail over the accepted quotation and specifications, which prevail over the final general terms. Purchase conditions supplied by the Customer must be addressed expressly before order acceptance; merely referring to competing terms should not be treated as resolving a conflict.

Changes, additions, substitutions and phased deliveries require written agreement about any effect on price, timing, compatibility and services. The Seller will not substitute a materially different product without the Customer's approval.

4. Product selection and project information

The Customer supplies accurate information about the site, intended use, dimensions, mounting positions, existing installation, operating conditions and destination requirements. The Seller confirms the agreed product variant and relevant documentation. Illustrations, sector images and general product-family descriptions are not evidence that a particular fitting meets a project specification.

Voltage, frequency, controls, emergency operation, protection ratings, environmental conditions, mounting and any sector-specific requirements must be checked for the actual installation. A CE marking is not a promise that every non-EU market accepts the product or that a particular lighting design complies with local rules. Each party retains the regulatory obligations attached to its actual role; these terms do not transfer the Seller's non-transferable obligations to the Customer.

5. Prices, taxes and payment

The quotation states its currency, validity, product and service prices, and whether freight, packaging, insurance, installation and taxes are included. Unless expressly stated otherwise, business prices exclude VAT and destination import charges. A VAT number or foreign delivery address does not by itself establish tax exemption; the required evidence and actual supply route must be checked.

Payment amounts, milestones and due dates are set out in the accepted quotation. No credit facility or deferred payment is created by an enquiry. Where an advance payment is agreed, the relevant procurement or dispatch starts after cleared funds and required technical approvals are received. Payments are made to the verified account stated on the Seller's invoice; an unexpected change should be checked through the established contact channel.

For overdue undisputed payments, the Seller may seek applicable statutory interest and reasonable recoverable collection costs, subject to required notices and mandatory law. Proportionate suspension may follow written notice and a reasonable opportunity to remedy the breach. A genuinely disputed amount should be raised promptly; undisputed amounts remain payable.

6. Delivery, risk and ownership

The order confirmation identifies the delivery location, the agreed allocation of transport costs and risk, unloading, insurance and customs responsibilities. If an Incoterms® rule is used, the confirmation must state the exact rule, named place or point and edition, for example "Incoterms® 2020". No default EXW, FCA, DAP or DDP rule is imposed by this draft. Incoterms do not by themselves settle payment, ownership or warranty.

Quoted lead times are estimates unless a binding deadline is expressly agreed. The Seller will communicate a material delay and its expected effect. A missed estimate does not eliminate the Customer's legal remedies. If an essential agreed deadline cannot be met, or performance remains overdue after an appropriate notice, the parties' termination and refund rights follow the contract and applicable law.

Risk passes at the point agreed in the order. To the extent legally effective in the destination country, ownership of identifiable supplied goods remains with the Seller until the agreed price for those goods is paid. This does not authorise entry to premises or recovery without a lawful process. Local formalities and the effect of installation must be checked before relying on retention of title.

7. International destinations and compliance

Worldwide enquiries are welcome; supply to a particular country, end user or project remains subject to feasibility, product requirements, export controls, sanctions and lawful payment and transport routes. The parties will identify the importer of record and responsibility for licences, duties, local taxes, customs clearance and destination documentation before confirming an order.

The Customer must disclose the intended destination and relevant end use accurately and must not divert products in breach of applicable restrictions. The Seller may decline an unaccepted order or suspend affected performance where it would be unlawful, explaining the reason where permitted. Any lawful balance due or refund for an unperformed part will be resolved under the contract and applicable law. A compliance issue is not a blanket right to retain all payments.

8. Advice, lighting plans and installation

Advice and planning are delivered with reasonable professional care within the agreed scope. Calculations depend on the stated inputs, assumptions and manufacturer data. A general recommendation is not a site survey, electrical design, structural assessment or guarantee of a specific saving unless that deliverable is expressly included. Changes to the site or inputs may require a revised plan.

Installation, commissioning, permits, access equipment, disposal and electrical work are included only where expressly agreed. Suitably qualified local professionals must perform work requiring those qualifications. The order must clarify whether an installer contracts directly with the Customer or acts as the Seller's subcontractor. Referring to an independent installer does not remove responsibility for services the Seller has itself contracted to provide.

9. Inspection and notification

The Customer should inspect deliveries as soon as reasonably practicable, record visible packaging damage with the carrier where possible, and report shortages, transit damage or incorrect items promptly. Keep packaging, labels, photographs and the delivery reference available. A hidden defect should be reported without undue delay after discovery, with a description of the symptoms and use conditions.

Prompt reporting helps investigate and preserve carrier claims. This draft does not impose an automatic 24- or 48-hour forfeiture of all rights. Signing a delivery note does not by itself waive rights concerning a defect that could not reasonably be detected on receipt. Do not energise equipment that appears unsafe.

10. Conformity, warranty and remedies

Supplied goods must meet the agreed specifications and applicable legal obligations. Any additional commercial or manufacturer warranty must be identified for the exact model before order acceptance, including its provider, duration, operating limits, remedies and claim procedure. There is no website-wide five-year or other fixed warranty promise.

The Customer may contact the Seller about a problem with the Seller's supply; a manufacturer warranty does not automatically replace those contractual rights. The Seller will assess the concern and arrange an appropriate remedy under the agreement and applicable law, which may include repair, replacement, price reduction or refund. The remedy and reasonable costs must reflect the nature and cause of the problem.

Damage caused by incorrect installation, unauthorised modification, unsuitable supply voltage or use outside agreed conditions may fall outside a commercial warranty to the extent it caused the failure. This is not a blanket exclusion for unrelated defects. Removal, access equipment, reinstallation, travel and third-party work must be addressed in the order or claim assessment; this page promises neither automatic reimbursement nor automatic exclusion.

11. Cancellation and returns

There is no voluntary change-of-mind return promise for business orders unless agreed. A cancellation or return request must be discussed before goods are sent back. Any agreed charge must reflect the circumstances and reasonable, documented, non-recoverable costs, taking account of work avoided and any resale value. This draft sets no automatic restocking percentage.

Custom-made, specially procured or configured goods may not be eligible for a voluntary return. That does not extinguish rights concerning defective or incorrectly supplied goods. Any mandatory cancellation or other rights remain intact. The Delivery, returns & warranty page explains what to include in a support request.

12. Responsibility and liability

Each party is responsible under applicable law for its own breach and for persons for whom it is legally responsible. A party claiming loss must take reasonable steps to limit avoidable damage and give the other party a reasonable opportunity to investigate and remedy a problem where appropriate.

No blanket exclusion of liability is created by this draft. Any proposed commercial liability cap or exclusion of specified consequential losses must be clearly negotiated and recorded before order acceptance, checked against insurance and applicable law. No clause may exclude liability that cannot lawfully be excluded, including applicable product-liability duties, or limit data-subject rights. The Seller does not disclaim responsibility for its own fraud or deliberate misconduct.

13. Disruption, suspension and termination

A party affected by an event beyond its reasonable control must notify the other promptly, describe the likely impact and take reasonable steps to limit it. Relief applies only to the performance actually prevented and only where the event legally qualifies. A price rise or supplier delay is not automatically force majeure.

The parties will discuss a revised timetable or reasonable alternative. If performance becomes unlawful, impossible or unreasonably prolonged, either party may seek termination of the affected part as permitted by law. Payment for properly completed performance and the treatment of advance payments for unperformed work must be settled fairly. For a remediable material breach, written notice and a reasonable cure opportunity are required where applicable.

14. Plans, confidentiality and personal data

Each party retains its pre-existing intellectual property. Once the agreed fees are paid, the Customer may use project-specific deliverables for the agreed project, including sharing them with its professional advisers and installers for that purpose. Reuse for other projects or resale requires any additional permission specified in the agreement. Third-party materials remain subject to their own rights.

The parties should protect information reasonably understood to be confidential and disclose it only to those who need it for the project or as required by law. Do not send sensitive documents through the general enquiry form; agree an appropriate exchange method first. Personal information is addressed in the Privacy notice.

15. Complaints, law and disputes

Send a complaint with the order reference and requested resolution to info@ledlightsolutions.online. The parties should first try to resolve it through their named contacts. This does not prevent urgent protective measures or suspend a legal deadline.

The proposed position for the final B2B terms is Dutch law, with the United Nations Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods (CISG) expressly excluded, and disputes submitted to the competent Dutch court, subject to overriding mandatory law and any valid, individually negotiated jurisdiction agreement. This proposed choice requires confirmation with the registered seller and relevant destination markets before adoption; this review page is not itself a jurisdiction agreement.

16. Invalid provisions and document version

If a provision is invalid, the remaining agreement continues so far as legally possible; any replacement must respect the original lawful purpose and mandatory rights. A failure to enforce a provision once is not a general waiver. The agreed language and dated terms should be retained with each order. Any translated version must identify which agreed text governs, subject to mandatory local language requirements.

Delivery, returns & warranty

Practical arrangements for international delivery, support, returns and product concerns.

Commercial draft for internal review

These proposed arrangements must be matched to the actual product, destination and accepted order. They do not create a blanket worldwide delivery, warranty or free-return promise.

Updated 21 September 2026 · Review edition 1

1. Delivery by destination

We consider professional lighting projects worldwide. An enquiry is not a guarantee that a particular product can be supplied to every market. Before accepting an order, the destination, end use, product documentation, transport route and applicable restrictions need to be checked. There is no automatic online checkout or live stock promise in this review version.

2. What your quotation should confirm

- The legal buyer and seller, exact product codes, quantities and approved specifications.
- Currency, price, VAT treatment, freight, packaging, insurance and any additional services.
- The full delivery address, receiving contact, opening hours, unloading arrangements and access restrictions.
- Estimated lead time, any expressly agreed deadline and whether split deliveries are acceptable.
- The delivery rule and named place, risk-transfer point, customs responsibilities and importer of record.
- The applicable warranty documents and arrangements for installation, commissioning and waste disposal.

Incoterms® 2020 may be used where expressly agreed. A term such as DAP or DDP must be matched to the named destination and the parties' actual capabilities. We do not assume that every quotation includes import clearance, duties or delivery after unloading. These points must be written down before payment.

3. Customs, taxes and local requirements

The order sets out who arranges export and import formalities and bears the related costs. The responsible party supplies accurate customs information and obtains required permits. Import VAT, duties, local handling or storage charges may arise; no universal landed-cost or tax-free promise is made.

Equipment suitability must be checked for the local electrical supply, installation rules and intended use. Responsibilities for product registration, packaging and electrical-waste schemes depend on the destination and each party's role. The allocation of work in a contract does not remove statutory obligations that remain with a seller, manufacturer or importer.

4. When the shipment arrives

Arrange a suitable person and any agreed unloading equipment to receive the shipment. Check the parcel or pallet count, labels and visible condition. If there is visible damage, record it on the delivery record where possible, photograph the packaging before unpacking, and keep the packaging available.

Email us promptly if goods are damaged, incomplete or different from the agreed order. A problem discovered later should be reported promptly after discovery. Do not install or use an item that may be unsafe. Reporting quickly assists investigation; it does not create a blanket short deadline that removes all defect rights.

5. Requesting support or reporting a defect

Contact info@ledlightsolutions.online with the subject "Delivery / warranty support" and, where available:

- Your organisation, contact details and order or invoice reference.
- Product code, quantity affected, serial or batch number and delivery date.
- A clear description of the issue and when it first occurred.
- Photographs of the item, packaging and label, plus relevant installation and operating details.
- Whether the item is installed and whether there is an immediate safety concern.

Send only information needed for the assessment. Remove unrelated personal details from images. We may request further evidence or a safe inspection. Do not undertake charged repairs, destructive testing or return transport on our account without agreement, except where urgent action or mandatory law requires otherwise.

6. Return authorisation and transport

Ask for a return reference and the correct return destination before shipping. The business address is not automatically a warehouse or return centre. Use suitable protective packaging, include the reference and keep proof of shipment. For international returns, agree the customs description and paperwork to avoid unnecessary repeat import charges.

For an accepted voluntary return, its condition requirements, transport responsibility, any justified charge and refund calculation are agreed in writing. For defective or incorrectly supplied goods, responsibility for reasonable return and remedy costs follows the applicable contract and law. A return procedure must not be used to prevent a valid claim.

7. Warranty, remedies and refunds

Warranty coverage is confirmed for the exact product and order. There is no universal warranty duration, free-return promise or automatic installation-cost exclusion. Manufacturer support may form part of the assessment, but it does not automatically replace our responsibility for our own supply.

After assessment, the available remedy may be repair, replacement, a price adjustment or a refund, depending on the agreement and applicable law. We will confirm the proposed remedy, relevant logistics and expected timing. If a refund is due, its amount, basis and payment arrangements will be confirmed without prejudice to any mandatory deadline. A valid defect claim is different from a discretionary change-of-mind return.

8. Installation and end of life

Use qualified professionals and the current manufacturer instructions. Retain the specification, commissioning information and maintenance records. Any installation or removal service, access equipment, recycling or take-back arrangement must be agreed for the project. Electrical equipment and packaging must be handled through the applicable local waste route; a generic worldwide collection service is not included by this website.

Read this page alongside the draft B2B Terms & Conditions. For an actual order, the accepted order documents and mandatory law determine the parties' rights.

Privacy notice

How project enquiries, business correspondence and website information are handled.

Current service information - verification pending

This notice describes the current site and flags outstanding checks. The registered controller details, provider arrangements and retention implementation still require completion. Your privacy rights apply now, including during this review.

Updated 21 September 2026 · Review edition 1

1. Who is responsible and how to contact us

LED Light Solutions / Ledlightsolutions.eu is a trading name associated with Global Squash, Netherlands. The business operating under that name determines how project enquiries and business correspondence are used. The exact registered controller name, legal form and postal address still need verification and are marked as pending in our Legal notice. This is an unresolved disclosure item, not an exemption from privacy obligations.

For privacy questions or requests, email info@ledlightsolutions.online and use “Privacy request” in the subject. No separate data protection officer contact has been designated in this review. You may use the same address whether you are a business contact, sole trader or other visitor.

2. Information involved

The project form requests organisation type and name, project country, sector, project type, project question, contact name, email address and confirmation of professional use. City or site location, dimensions, operating hours, product interest, timing and registration or VAT reference are optional. We also receive the enquiry reference, messages and any subsequent information you choose to send.

Required fields help us understand and answer the request. If you prefer not to use the form, you may email a relevant question directly. We do not ask for payment-card details, identity documents or sensitive personal information in this form. Do not include patient, employee or other unnecessary third-party details in a project description.

Hosting, email and form-delivery services may process technical information such as IP address, request time, browser information, delivery status and security events. If a colleague introduces you as a project contact, we may receive your business details from that colleague; we should tell you the source and purpose when we first contact you, or within the applicable legal period.

3. Before and after sending

While you prepare and review a project brief, our page code processes the entries in the open page. It does not send them while you type or save them in `localStorage` or `sessionStorage`. Your browser may independently remember entries through autofill or page restoration.

“Download brief” creates a file on your device and “Copy brief” places text on your clipboard. These actions alone do not send the enquiry. You control the copies you save or share. Once you choose to send, the form data is submitted to FormSubmit and intended for delivery to our business mailbox. A browser confirmation page or acknowledgement is not proof that the business has read the message.

4. Purposes and legal bases

- Responding to a business contact: our legitimate interest in answering a relevant enquiry, preparing a proposal and maintaining the organisation's project relationship, balanced against the contact person's rights.
- A contract with you personally, including a sole trader: steps you request before a contract, or performance of that contract, where the information is necessary for it.
- Accounts, tax and legally required checks: compliance with the legal obligations that apply to the actual transaction. Not every enquiry needs tax or identity documentation.
- Security and handling complaints or claims: legitimate interests in protecting the service, investigating problems and establishing or defending legal claims, with proportionate access and retention.

Sending an enquiry is not consent to unrelated marketing. No newsletter subscription or advertising profile is created by this website. If a newsletter is introduced, its signup will explain the purpose, provider and lawful basis separately, with the required choice and an easy unsubscribe route. A new use of information must be assessed and communicated before it starts.

5. Services and other recipients

- Website hosting: the site is published through OpenAI Sites with Cloudflare delivery infrastructure. Hosting and security operations may involve technical request information. This does not mean form contents are sent to an AI model for analysis.
- FormSubmit: the external enquiry-delivery service processes submitted fields and technical information. Its documentation describes reCAPTCHA spam protection and a submission archive. See the provider links below.
- GoDaddy / Microsoft 365: our business email service receives direct email and messages delivered by the form service, and stores correspondence in the business mailbox.
- Project and professional recipients: if a project proceeds, relevant suppliers, installers, carriers, customs advisers, accountants or legal advisers may need limited information for their role. Sharing must be restricted to what that role requires. Authorities may receive information where legally required.

Provider roles, contractual processing terms, sub-processors and retention settings are still being checked for this review. We do not represent that a complete data-processing assessment has already been approved. The company must put the necessary arrangements in place; linking to a provider's policy is not a substitute for doing so.

6. Processing outside the EEA

Some service providers or their support and infrastructure partners may process information outside the European Economic Area. International processing requires an appropriate legal mechanism, such as an applicable adequacy decision or contractual safeguards with the necessary assessment and additional measures where required.

The countries, entities and transfer safeguards for this site's exact service configuration have not yet been fully verified. We therefore do not promise EEA-only storage or claim that a specific transfer mechanism is already in place for every provider. This is an outstanding operational review item. Contact us for the information available about a particular transfer and any safeguards; a request to submit an enquiry is not treated as blanket consent to otherwise unlawful transfers.

7. How retention is determined

Our retention criteria distinguish the following records:

- Unsent entries: processed in the open page by our code, subject to your browser's own restoration behaviour.
- Saved briefs and clipboard copies: remain under your control until you delete or replace them.
- FormSubmit archive: the provider's published documentation states 30 days. This does not delete a copy already delivered to a mailbox or retained by you.
- Enquiries that do not become orders: retain only while the specific enquiry and reasonable, expected follow-up remain active; review for deletion or anonymisation when it is closed and no legal need remains.
- Orders, invoices and support records: retain the records necessary for the relevant accounting obligation, contracted service, warranty or active claim, and review them when that purpose or legal period ends. Not every email needs the same period as an invoice.
- Hosting, security and provider backup records: depend on the configured service and its documented retention. Exact settings and deletion limits remain to be confirmed.

A detailed company schedule and deletion process still require implementation and verification. No automated mailbox-deletion schedule is claimed here. A documented legal hold may justify keeping a relevant record longer; it does not justify retaining unrelated records indefinitely. Ask us about the basis and intended period for your specific correspondence.

8. Security and safe sharing

The website is served over HTTPS. That protects the connection but does not itself establish how every provider stores data or make email a confidential document portal. Do not send passwords, identity-document copies, health information or highly sensitive site details through the general form. Agree an appropriate exchange method for sensitive project files.

Access controls, account protection, provider agreements and incident handling must be maintained by the business and its providers; this review does not claim that an independent security audit has taken place. If you suspect information has reached the wrong recipient, contact us promptly with only the detail needed to investigate. Applicable breach-assessment and notification duties remain in force.

9. Your rights and complaints

Depending on the circumstances, you can request access, correction, deletion, restriction or portability of your personal data, and object to processing based on legitimate interests. Where processing relies on consent, you can withdraw it without affecting earlier lawful processing. The right to object to direct marketing is unconditional. Rights may be subject to legal conditions, including necessary record-keeping.

Email your request to our privacy contact. Do not attach an identity document initially; proportionate verification may be requested if necessary. Requests are normally free. We must respond without undue delay and ordinarily within one month. If a permitted extension is needed, we must explain it within that first month.

You may complain to the Dutch Autoriteit Persoonsgegevens or another competent supervisory authority, including where you live or work in the EU/EEA or where an alleged infringement occurred. You do not have to complete our internal complaint process before exercising that right.

10. Automated decisions, children and updates

The site does not make automated decisions with legal or similarly significant effects about you. Catalogue filtering matches products to your search in the browser; it is not an eligibility decision. External spam protection may filter a submission, so direct email remains available if sending fails.

The service is intended for professional enquiries, not for collecting information from children. If unnecessary information about a child has been submitted, contact us so it can be assessed and removed where appropriate. We will update this notice when the actual processing changes and explain material changes relevant to information already held. Privacy rights do not depend on accepting the draft sales terms.

Cookie information

Cookies, browser storage, hosting and the separate form-delivery service.

Current configuration - audit pending

No optional tracking is connected in the site code. Hosting and external-service behaviour has not yet been fully audited. This page does not claim that the entire service is cookie-free.

Updated 21 September 2026 · Review edition 1

1. Cookies and similar storage

Cookies are small pieces of information a service can store in your browser. Similar technologies include browser storage and tracking pixels. Their purpose and effect matter, not only their name. This page separates the behaviour of our own page code from the hosting and external services used when you send an enquiry.

2. Current website setup

Current configuration reviewed on 21 September 2026

Our page code	Does not write cookies, localStorage or sessionStorage. Project entries are held in the open page until you choose to send or save them.
Optional analytics and advertising	No analytics, advertising pixels, remarketing or session-replay tools are connected by the site code.
Video, fonts and images	Served as site assets. The homepage player is not an embedded YouTube or Vimeo player.
Social media and newsletter	No embedded social feed or active newsletter signup. Opening a future external social link would be a separate visit.
Hosting and security	Platform infrastructure may process request or security information and may use its own technical mechanisms. Exact cookie names, providers and lifetimes have not been independently verified.
Sending an enquiry	Opens FormSubmit on its own domain. Its spam protection may involve Google reCAPTCHA and third-party cookies or similar technologies.

This inventory is based on the site configuration and provider documentation, not a completed live browser-cookie audit. It must not be read as a guarantee that no infrastructure or third-party cookie can ever be set.

3. Your choices on this site

There are currently no optional site tracking categories to enable or refuse. The footer's "Cookie settings" button explains that configuration; it does not pretend to save a consent choice or control another company's website.

Before optional tracking that requires consent is added, it must be blocked until a valid choice, with a clear refusal option and an equally straightforward way to withdraw consent. Continuing to browse or submitting a project question will not be treated as tracking consent. A technical service must qualify for any claimed exemption; being described as "security" does not settle that assessment by itself.

4. External form service

FormSubmit handles the sending step outside this website. Its privacy document describes possible cookie use, and its documentation describes reCAPTCHA. The exact third-party behaviour may vary. Our settings dialog cannot remove or control cookies on that service or on Google's domain.

If you prefer not to use the form-delivery service, email info@ledlightsolutions.online directly. Email still involves your email provider and our business mailbox provider, as described in the Privacy notice. A provider's responsibility for its own page does not remove our responsibility to assess the service we choose.

5. Browser controls and updates

You can inspect, block or delete cookies and site data in your browser settings. Blocking some technical functions may affect a service, while clearing cookies does not delete a submitted enquiry from a mailbox. Use the privacy contact for a request about information already sent.

Before new functionality is activated, this inventory should identify any actual cookie or storage name, provider, purpose, duration and consent requirement. Outstanding infrastructure and external-form checks are recorded in the legal review notes. Contact us if you observe unexpected tracking or need more information.

Legal notice

Business identity, website status and use of published material.

Business particulars - completion pending

The trading name and contact email are available. The exact registered seller, legal form, address, KVK and VAT details must still be supplied and verified.

Updated 21 September 2026 · Review edition 1

1. Business identity

The information supplied for this website identifies LED Light Solutions / Ledlightsolutions.eu as a trading name associated with Global Squash in the Netherlands. The site is published at ledlightsolutions.online. The domain name is not a separate legal entity.

Business details for this review edition

Brand / trading name	LED Light Solutions / Ledlightsolutions.eu
Business name supplied	Global Squash, Netherlands
Registered contracting party and legal form	Pending verification against the current KVK registration.
Registered and correspondence address	Pending confirmation. Do not send goods without an agreed return address.
KVK registration and VAT identification	Pending confirmation; no registration or tax number is represented as verified.
Email	info@ledlightsolutions.online
Telephone	Pending confirmation.

These outstanding particulars must be completed before adopting the draft sales terms or issuing orders under them. Calling this an internal review does not make the website private or remove obligations relating to visitors or personal data.

2. Website and document status

This publicly accessible website presents professional lighting information and enquiry routes. The sales terms and delivery policy are review drafts, not final standard terms already incorporated into transactions. There is no active checkout, payment collection or newsletter subscription. An enquiry, downloaded brief or automated acknowledgement is not an accepted order.

Privacy and cookie information describes the current setup and identifies matters still being checked. Statutory rights apply regardless of a review label. If you need a confirmed specification, legal business detail or delivery commitment, contact us before relying on it.

3. Product information and intellectual property

Sector images illustrate environments and are not presented as completed customer projects. Manufacturer references and documents must be checked for the exact model, date and intended application. General illustrations and example calculations do not replace an accepted specification or project assessment.

Website design, brand assets and original materials are protected by the rights that apply to them. Manufacturer names, product photographs and third-party documents remain associated with their respective rights holders. You may view and save material for evaluating a project; wider copying, alteration or commercial redistribution requires the relevant permission unless otherwise allowed by law. A reference or link does not by itself establish an agency relationship, certification or endorsement.

4. Website use and corrections

Please use the enquiry routes lawfully and do not submit malware, unlawful material or information you have no right to share. Report a suspected error or security issue to our contact email without exploiting it or sending unnecessary personal data. We may correct information and maintain the website; changes do not retrospectively alter an accepted contract.

External links lead to services with their own information and terms. No guarantee of uninterrupted availability is made. This notice does not exclude liability that cannot lawfully be excluded or limit applicable privacy, accessibility or contractual rights.

Accessibility

Available controls, known limitations and a route to request help.

Current accessibility information

This is a practical accessibility statement for the present site. It is not a certification or a claim of a completed independent accessibility audit.

Updated 21 September 2026 · Review edition 1

1. Our approach

We want professional lighting information to be usable on different devices and with different access needs. The current site includes labelled form fields, visible keyboard focus, headings, a skip link and responsive layouts. This is a description of design measures, not a declaration of certified compliance with WCAG or any particular accessibility law.

2. Film and movement

The homepage film starts muted where the browser permits autoplay. “Pause film” stops playback, “Sound on” enables music and “Watch full film” opens a player with its own controls. You can read the core service, sector and product information without watching the film.

A separate accessible transcript or audio description of the promotional film has not yet been provided. Information conveyed only visually may therefore not be available to every visitor. Tell us what information you need and we can discuss an alternative format.

3. Known limitations

JavaScript is needed for the interactive project-brief review, copy and download functions, catalogue filters and dialogs. Main content and navigation remain available without it. The external FormSubmit sending step may introduce a spam challenge or accessibility difficulty outside this site’s interface; email is available as an alternative.

Legacy manufacturer PDFs may not be fully tagged or accessible. The site has not undergone a complete independent audit with assistive technologies, all browser zoom levels or all mobile devices. The current video layout reflects the owner’s reviewed preference; this is not a guarantee of identical rendering on every device.

4. Request help or report a barrier

Email info@ledlightsolutions.online with the page, the task you were trying to complete and the format or assistance you need. Device, browser or assistive-technology details can help but are optional. You do not need to disclose a disability or medical information.

We will review the request and discuss a practical alternative. Accessibility obligations for any future checkout, customer account or digital service will be assessed before that functionality is introduced.

Interne afronding

Juridische teksten: klaar voor interne beoordeling

De goedgekeurde websitebasis en eerdere video-instellingen zijn vastgelegd. Er zijn nu zes uitgewerkte Engelstalige informatiepagina's: zakelijke algemene voorwaarden, levering/retouren/garantie, privacy, cookies, bedrijfsinformatie en toegankelijkheid. De commerciële teksten zijn concepten; de feitelijke informatie en open punten zijn apart herkenbaar.

De website is openbaar bereikbaar. Intern delen verandert dat niet. De huidige privacyverplichtingen gelden dus al. De teksten zijn een werkbasis en geen verklaring dat juridische of technische naleving volledig is afgetekend.

1. Officiële bedrijfsgegevens

Vul de exacte contracterende naam en rechtsvorm, het vestigings- en correspondentieadres, KvK-nummer, btw-identificatie en telefoonnummer in. Controleer de handelsnaam tegen het actuele uittreksel. Vul geen gegevens van een gelijknamig bedrijf in op basis van een zoekresultaat.

2. Verkoopafspraken en verzekering

Bevestig offertegeldigheid, betaalmomenten, orderacceptatie, leveranciergaranties, retouradres en servicekosten. Laat rechtskeuze, uitsluiting van het Weens Koopverdrag, bevoegde rechter en eventuele aansprakelijkheidsbeperking toetsen door een jurist met internationale B2B-ervaring. Er is bewust geen onbevestigde algemene garantietermijn of willekeurige aansprakelijkheidslimiet opgenomen.

3. Internationale levering en productdossier

Leg per order het land, de productvariant, lokale geschiktheid, leveringsconditie met plaats en jaartal, invoerder en kostenverdeling vast. Controleer toepasselijke sancties, productdocumentatie, verpakings- en afvalverplichtingen. Een CE-markering is geen universele toelating voor alle landen. Publiceer geen wereldwijde standaardbelofte die leveranciers en vervoerders nog niet ondersteunen.

4. Privacy: partijen, toegang en bewaartermijnen

Controleer de exacte providerentiteiten, verwerkersafspraken waar vereist, subverwerkers, landen, doorgiftegrondslagen en accountbeveiliging voor hosting, FormSubmit en GoDaddy/Microsoft 365. De openbare FormSubmit-privacytekst uit 2019 is op zichzelf geen bewezen volledige verwerkersovereenkomst. Stel een praktisch verwijderproces vast; de genoemde 30 dagen bij FormSubmit betekent niet dat de mailbox dezelfde termijn gebruikt.

Voorgestelde interne keuze om te beoordelen: verwijder of anonimiseer niet-doorgezette aanvragen uiterlijk twaalf maanden na het laatste inhoudelijke contact, tenzij een aantoonbaar lopend project of rechtsgrond langer bewaren rechtvaardigt. Leg voor facturen, garanties en geschillen de werkelijk toepasselijke wettelijke en contractuele termijnen vast. Deze voorgestelde termijn is nog niet als automatische mailboxfunctie geïmplementeerd.

5. Cookies en latere marketing

Controleer de gepubliceerde site en externe verzendstap in een echte browser op cookies en opslag: naam, domein, doel, duur en toestemmingsvereiste. De eigen sitecode bevat nu geen optionele tracking. Voeg voor latere analytics, advertentiepixels of embeds eerst werkende toestemmingskeuzes toe. Kies voor een nieuwsbrief een provider, duidelijke aparte inschrijving, afmeldroute en bewijs van toestemming waar nodig.

6. Aanvraagroute en definitieve ingebruikname

De gewone mailbox werkt, maar de automatische aflevering van complete formulieraanvragen is nog niet opgelost. De volledige formulieropzet blijft behouden. Gebruik directe e-mail voor een aanvraag die aantoonbaar moet aankomen. Leg de definitieve voorwaarden vóór een order vast in een bewaarbare versie en zorg dat de klant ze tijdig ontvangt; alleen een link onderaan de website is geen volledige contractprocedure.

Laat de teksten na het aanvullen controleren en adopteer daarna één gedateerde eindversie. Een nieuwsbrief of consumentenverkoop vraagt een eigen vervolgaanpassing; beide zijn nu niet actief.
